The future is already here and it is largely digital. Therefore, the City of Stockholm is now making a major investment in IT and e-services. This investment will make Stockholm a world class IT capital. To achieve this objective, the City of Stockholm has prepared an e-strategy describing the road ahead in detail. This presentation will take you on a trip through the city and you will meet some of the people who benefit from the strategy. That is, those of us who live and work in the most beautiful capital city in the world!
Stockholm.se is the meeting place for Stockholm residents. Several exciting services are being developed there. You can read about this development already now, apply for preschool and much more. It will also be easier and more attractive to run a business, which will benefit Stockholm’s business community.

Today more than 800,000 people live in our capital and more are moving in. We should always be accessible to Stockholm residents, by phone and on the internet. We are making it easy to be a Stockholmer!
We all have one thing in common: we are all different with very different needs. From those needs we can create opportunities. Therefore, we are constantly thinking of you and other Stockholmers as we build the Stockholm of tomorrow. Because it should be easy to be a Stockholm resident. Both at stockholm.se and in the city.

Stockholm is a fantastic city offering many services. One of them belongs to you. "My services" is your page at stockholm.se which you can easily use for your e-services and other interests. You just log in, whenever you want and wherever you are, to do your business.

Visit stockholm.se today and see what it has to offer. You can pick and choose from the services the City provides. Why not find out the latest political decisions, book a parking space in the city centre or give your opinion on snow clearance? There are many possibilities and more will be added continuously.
Stockholm has become the capital of freedom of choice. Better infrastructure means that we can now live in the countryside with the city just a few keystrokes away.

Wherever you live in Stockholm, it should be easy to move freely between the different city districts. Therefore, digital cooperation between municipalities, the county council, public authorities and private operators is important. This cooperation makes the services provided by the City both efficient and accessible.

We are also developing cooperation in the nursing and health care area and creating a joint website at which guardians and next-of-kin can quickly access the information and services they need. Because even in difficult times, it should be easy to be a Stockholmer.
We are continuing our efforts in providing broadband for all and new services for mobile phones. Exciting development of the geographic information systems of the future is also taking place. They show the way with flexible route descriptions and allow you to study future city plans. This is all designed to make Stockholm a more accessible, more attractive and more modern city to live and work in.

With new technology a lot of things become easier. For example, applying for a planning permit or a licence to serve alcohol. Our growing range of e-services makes life easier for all Stockholm business owners. Stockholm.se is also at your disposal 24 hours a day. Welcome to a more open Stockholm.
We shape Stockholm together with you. Therefore it is important that those of us who work for the City are accessible. Our contact centre allows you get in touch with us fast without needing to know whom to contact. You can always reach us on the web, by phone and by email.

The City of Stockholm has the very important task of reporting what is happening in Stockholm and the political decisions taken in the City Hall. We do this by publishing the information in the streets and public places. We also do it on our website. You can always feel at home at stockholm.se!
In the City of Stockholm’s Vision 2030, we travel just over 20 years into the future and arrive in the leading growth region in Europe. With the help of the City of Stockholm’s e-strategy, we are now laying the foundation for the reality of the future, an attractive, world class IT capital.
